Study Habits in Relation to Academic Achievement Nagarjuna Togata Itte 2012-07

Study skills have long been the primary means by which school learning takes place outside the classroom through homework, assignments, and independent study on special projects and guided study under the supervision of a teacher or counselor. The students organize materials, drills, and exercises in order to master specific skills and formulate ideas in a way that can be evaluated by the teacher. The main intention of the study is to find the relation of study habits of Intermediate students with Gender, Management, Year of study, Locality, academic achievement, Caste, Age, Annual income, Father's education, Father's occupation, Mother's education, Mother's occupation, Type of family, Residence, Size of the family, Group of study. In this study different types of statistical techniques are used - Frequency Distribution Characteristics, Critical Ratio and One Way ANOVA. The present book is aimed to identify the influence of study habits with socio - demographic variables of Intermediate students.

Data was collected from 320 Intermediate students in Chittoor district. The book is prepared to know the study habits of Intermediate students.

UNDERSTANDING STUDENT SUCCESS IN MATHEMATICS Dr. Sana Hemavathi

2025-11-11 Mathematics has a profound effect upon civilization. The sharp growth of technology and the extensive development of science in the first decade of the twenty first century are without any doubt due to the true application of mathematics. Today everyone who intends to enter the infinite world of science must be familiar with the language of mathematics. Mathematics is the language in which, for the past four thousand years people have been communicating and recording their thoughts and findings about the world. In the study of mathematics, the emphasis should be more on the development of general problem-solving ability rather than finding a solution to a particular problem. Knowledge is useful, only when one is able to apply it effectively. The ability to apply it, in turn, needs power to think effectively. Therefore the pupil should attack problems logically in the spirit of discoverer.

Approaching Difficulties in Literacy Development Felicity Fletcher-Campbell

2009-08-24 This Reader considers the complexity of literacy difficulties, showing how research into literacy difficulties has to be multi-faceted and multi-disciplinary and involve a range of research approaches and methods. The chapters show that this is necessary to accommodate the wide range of issues that can, potentially, explain literacy difficulties and suggest strategies and interventions to ease those difficulties. Starting from the point that literacy is a contested concept and that acquiring literacy is a complex process, this Reader goes on to consider literacy development in relation to: - Theoretical understandings, implications for practice - Assessing literacy difficulties - Pedagogy and planning - Interventions in different contexts This Reader is relevant to all postgraduate students of Literacy, as well as educators, professionals and policy makers.

STUDY HABIT Dr H M Barot & Bhaveshkumar R Parmar 2020-06-10 Study habits are defined as those techniques, such as summarizing, note taking, outlining or locating material which learners employ to assist themselves in the efficient learning of the material at hand. The term "Study Habit" implies a sort of more or less permanent method of studying. According to Good's dictionary of education, "Study habit is the tendency of pupil to study when the opportunities are given, the pupil's way of studying whether systematic or unsystematic, efficient or inefficient." Study-habits are the essence of a dynamic personality. A proper study habits enables an individual to reap a good harvest in future. The present society is a competitive society, where the principle of struggle for existence and survival for fittest exists. Pen has become mightier than sword. Study-habit is a process from which an individual gets proper input to feed his hunger and to quench his thrust for knowledge. The study habits thus are of great assistance to actualize the potentialities of the individual. Good study habits lead to good academic record and bad study-habits lead to poor academic record as there is direct relationship between study habits and academic achievement.

Relationship Between Study Habits and Academic Achievement of Higher Secondary School Students A. S. Arul Lawrence 2014
The present study was probed to find the significant relationship between study habits and academic achievement of higher secondary school students with reference to the background variables. Survey method was employed. Data for the study were collected from 300 students in 13 higher secondary schools using Study Habits Inventory by V.G. Anantha (2004) and the Quarterly Achievement Test Questions. The significant difference between the means of each pair of group was computed using Standard Deviation, "t" test, ANOVA and Pearson's Co-efficient Correlation. The findings were established and tabulated from the analysed data. The finding shows that there was no significant difference between study habits and academic achievement of higher secondary school students. Finally, Interpretations were given by the investigator based on the findings.

The Impact Of Study Habits On Academic Performance in Mathematics. The Case of Senior Secondary School Students Toheeb Olatunji
2021-02-22 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2019

in the subject Mathematics - Miscellaneous, grade: 4.02, University of Lagos, course: Mathematics and Education, language: English, abstract: The study examined study habits and academic performance of senior secondary school students in Mathematics. The main purpose of the study was to investigate the relationship between study habits and academic performance of senior secondary school students in Mathematics. To carry out this study, four research questions and one null hypothesis were raised to guide the study. The population of 1128 Senior Secondary School Two (SS2) students with a sample size of 200 respondents was selected from 5 public secondary schools for the study using simple random sampling technique. A structured questionnaire was used to gather data for the study, which consists of two sections (A and B), section A consist of 20 items while section B, consist of 30 achievement tests on mathematics. The reliability coefficient of 0.72 was obtained using Split Half Method.

Data collected was analyzed using simple frequency counts, percentages and Pearson Product Moment Correlation Co-efficient (PPMC) and the hypothesis was tested at 0.05 level of significance using One-Way Analysis of Variance(ANOVA). However, the results revealed that there is significant relationship between study habits and academic performance of senior secondary school students in mathematics. Based on the result of the findings, it was recommended that group guidance should be organized in schools by professional counsellors in order to create awareness on how students can develop effective study habits which could lead to good academic performance in mathematics and a functional school library should be mounted in all the secondary schools.

Teaching and Learning in a Digital World

Michael E. Auer 2017-12-26 This book gathers the Proceedings of the 20th International Conference on Interactive Collaborative Learning (ICL2017), held in Budapest, Hungary on 27-29 September 2017. The authors are currently witnessing a significant transformation in the development of education. The impact of globalisation on all areas of human life, the exponential acceleration of technological developments and global markets, and the need for flexibility and agility are essential and challenging elements of this process that have to be tackled in general, but especially in engineering education. To face these current real-world challenges, higher education has to find innovative ways to quickly respond to them. Since its inception in 1998, this conference has been devoted to new approaches in learning with a focus on collaborative learning. Today the ICL conferences offer a forum for exchange concerning relevant trends and research results, and for sharing practical experience gained while developing and testing elements of new technologies and pedagogies in the learning context.

Exploring the Relationship Between Grit and Study Habits Among Two-Year College Students
Aeron Zentner 2018 The ability to persevere and achieve one's goals has been studied throughout social and cognitive psychological research, which has found that motivation, effort, resilience, and personal characteristics (e.g., optimism, creativity, and confidence), coined as grit, are associated with achievement. While completion rates in higher education have slightly increased over time, institutional leaders are still challenged with the issue of low rates in academic success, retention, and completion. To alleviate this challenge, institutions are seeking supplemental academic support services and are looking to identify behaviors that lead to increased academic performance. Research supports that motivation and study habits have positive impacts on academic performance. The following study examined the relationship between study habit behaviors and identified whether differences exist between students based on level of grit.
