Alcor is the world's leader in cryopreservation research and technology. Established in 1972, we are a non-profit scientific research foundation based in Scottsdale, Arizona. Many of the patients - as Alcor Life Extension Foundation calls them - are people who were terminally ill with cancer, ALS or other diseases with no cure in the present day. The Alcor Life Extension Foundation, most often referred to as Alcor, is an American nonprofit, federally tax-exempt, 501 (c) (3) organization based in Scottsdale, Arizona, United States. Contact us at ALCOR® Scientific. We're here to answer any questions you may have or provide more information about our ESR products. Alcor® Scientific is an innovative designer & manufacturer of automated Erythrocyte Sedimentation Rate (ESR) medical diagnostic instruments. With over 50 years of experience, Alcor is one of the oldest, largest, and most experienced cryonics service providers globally, with an extensive track record of successful cryopreservations. Apr 29, 2026 · Alcor's goal is to preserve cells and tissue as intact as possible through a process called vitrification—using chemicals and controlled cooling to prevent the ice crystals that typically form... All SEDiTROL® customers have access to iQAP, ALCOR® Scientific's convenient online quality control data management program. iQAP allows laboratories to compare their performance to other laboratories ... Alcor has been the world leader in cryonics and preservation science for over half a century. Explore who we are, what we do, and how we're continuing to pioneer the future of this growing industry. Alcor offers comprehensive assistance during your transition, including employee data transfer, cost estimation, operational handover, legal settlement, and more.
