POGIL is an acronym for Process Oriented Guided Inquiry Learning. It is a student-centered, group-learning instructional strategy and philosophy developed through research on how ...

Process Oriented Guided Inquiry Learning (POGIL) is an activity-based, group-learning instructional strategy. POGIL was created in 1994 to improve teaching of general chemistry. Process-Oriented Guided-Inquiry Learning (POGIL) is a teaching approach which integrates discovery activities into the lecture with collaborative learning. POGIL's structured yet flexible approach ensures that students not only grasp the content but also develop the process skills necessary for success in academic, professional, and personal contexts. POGIL® (Process Oriented Guided Inquiry Learning) is a student-centered instructional approach in which students work in small teams with the instructor acting only as a facilitator. Yet these are skills that students must develop to continue to learn beyond the classroom environment. POGIL is designed to have students learn terms and develop concepts through guided inquiry ... POGIL differs from other approaches in two particular ways. The first is the explicit and conscious emphasis on developing essential and purposeful process skills.
