Advancing the Science of Environmental Justice in the International Wildlife Trade Jamie K. Reaser 2025-06-03 The Smithsonian Institution has offered to cover the publication costs of most, if not all, of the papers accepted for this Research Topic. There is a need to conceptualize an environmental justice framework that informs regulation of the international wildlife trade to minimize species endangerment and infectious disease risks while also affording environmental justice to communities, nations, species, and ecological systems entwined in the commerce pathway. This Research Topic is dedicated to advancing the science of environmental justice in the international wildlife trade from both "problems" and "solutions" perspectives. We welcome manuscripts relevant to legal and/or illegal aspects of the international wildlife trade. Submissions must be of a scholarly nature and framed from a social sciences perspective, although inter-disciplinary work is encouraged. The international wildlife trade has been recognized as one of the greatest threats to biodiversity, as well as a facilitator of zoonotic disease transmission with pandemic potential. This has led to increased calls for regulation of this megabillion/year industry—ranging from comprehensive bans to risk-based strategies that are species, product, and/or geography specific. Every aspect of wildlife commerce and every proposed risk mitigation measure has implications for environmental justice, yet environmental justice has not been mainstreamed in the scientific inquiry, policy, nor planning processes relative to the international wildlife trade. Because wildlife trade has diverse drivers and purposes, as well as different levels of legality, social legitimacy, and enforcement, there is an urgent need to understand the environmental justice issues tied to consumer demand vs. supply provision along the trade chain, including how this is influenced by economic, cultural, and geographic biases. An understanding of environmental justice patterns and trends is necessary for the design and support of effective regulatory frameworks that manage risks in actuality, rather than merely in concept. Determining where and how to permit and support legal and sustainable wildlife trade, versus where it should be more tightly regulated or even cease, requires at least as much understanding of the human animal as it does the wildlife species. A greater understanding of the political economy of the illegal aspects of the international wildlife trade from an environmental justice perspective can also open new vistas of green criminological inquiry. Ecological citizenship and environmental justice are central themes in green criminology highly relevant to the wildlife trade. They recognize justice as central to the right to be protected from harm, whether that is one-on-one harm, institutionalized harm, or harm arising from human actions that affect climates and environments on a global scale. The recognition of such rights in trade regulation is scant and more likely overshadowed by a desire to protect the economic value of a “good” rather than the inherent value of the wild animal being consumed. We will prioritize papers that use social science approaches/tools to empirically investigate aspects of environmental justice in the international wildlife trade. Manuscripts should be framed so as to facilitate development of an environmental justice framework that informs regulation of the international wildlife trade to minimize species endangerment and infectious disease risks while also affording environmental justice to communities, nations, and ecological systems entwined in the commerce pathway. We welcome manuscripts relevant to legal and/or illegal aspects of the international wildlife trade. Submissions must be of a scholarly nature - we will not accept advocacy documents. The following manuscript types will also be considered if the contributions are sufficiently innovative/transformativ: 1) Case studies of environmental justice problems/resolutions in the international wildlife trade context. 2) Models for advancing the science of environmental justice in the international wildlife trade context. 3) Analyses of international wildlife trade law/policy frameworks with a view toward integrating environmental justice issues (as rooted in scholarly science). All papers should emphasize conservation goals/outcomes. Direct inquiries about other manuscript themes/types to Dr. Jamie K. Reaser at Reaserjk@si.edu This Research Topic was developed in collaboration with the IUCN Commission on Education and Communication (<https://www.iucn.org/our-union/commissions/commission-education-and-communication>) and the International Alliance Against Health Risks in the Wildlife Trade (<https://alliance-health-wildlife.org>). Global Health Experiential Education Akshaya Neil Arya 2017-09-14 This book presents best practices for ethical and safe international health elective experiences for trainees and the educational competencies and evaluation techniques that make them valuable. It includes commentaries, discussions and descriptions of new global health education guidelines, reviews of the literature, as well as research. Uniquely, it will include ground-breaking research on perspectives of partners in the Global South whose voices are often unheard, student perspectives and critical discussions of the historical foundations and power dynamics inherent in international medical work. Global Health Experiential Education is a timely book that will be of interest to academic directors of global health programmes and anyone involved in training and international exchanges across North America. African Spirituality, Politics, and Knowledge Systems Toyin Falola 2022-03-10 Focusing on the three leading religious traditions in Africa (African Traditional Religion, Islam, and Christianity), this book shows how belief in the supremacy of sacred words compels actions and influences practices in contemporary Africa. "Sacred words" are taken to mean holy texts as in divination, the Quran and the Bible. Toyin Falola evaluates how religious leaders engage with sacred words, both orals and texts, engendering practices that reveal the expression of religious beliefs, the impact of those beliefs, and the knowledge contained in them. Attention is given to the key ideas in the words chosen by religious leaders, and how they form a continuous knowledge system, impacting the politics of managing society and people.

African Therapeutic Systems Zacchaeus Akin Ademuwagun 1979 Themes in Cultural Psychiatry, an Annotated Bibliography, 1975-1980 Armando R. Favazza 1982 While expanding on the previous compilation, Anthropological and Cross-Cultural Themes in Mental Health: An Annotated Bibliography, 1925-1974, Favazza anthologizes the next five years of literature on cultural psychiatry. The magnitude of material during this time period allowed Favazza to broaden the scope from cultural psychiatric themes in psychiatric and psychological journals to also include anthropological journals, non-English-language journals, and books as well.

The Yorùbá Traditional Healers of Nigeria Mary Olufunmilayo Adekson 2003 Table of contents Reproductive Health Barbara A. Anderson 2005 Reproductive Health: Women and Men's Shared Responsibility is a much needed reference for both leaders and students in community health. The author's basic premise, that reproductive health must be addressed in an individual, community, and global context, is reflected in this integrated orientation to reproductive health that befits the needs of students of the twenty first century. It offers a cutting-edge approach in its presentation of information about reproductive health, complete with recognition of the role of men, human rights, social justice, global health, infertility, environmental threats, gender violence, and more.

The Vital Force Roland Hallgren 1995 The concept of ase is a life force held by the Yorubas of south-west Nigeria. This concept has developed in written sources and literature through the last 40 years. An extensive historico-critical investigation has resulted in the advantage of demystifying ase and vital forces in general as vivid pictures of a language game. The French scholar Pierre Verger and the Nigerian scholar Wande Abimbola are found to be the principal forerunners of the literary process leading to an ase orthodoxy. This study also postulates different traditions of the development context; A popular tradition, a philosophic esoteric tradition, and an academic tradition.

Global Yorùbá Toyin Falola 2024-11-19 In Global Yorùbá, renowned scholar Toyin Falola covers the history, people, traditions, environment, religion, spirituality, cosmology, culture, and philosophy of one of Africa's largest cultural groups, the Yorùbá, all while considering the people's relationship with their immediate and distant neighbors. Falola examines how the Yorùbá people have adapted to their environment and tapped it to (re)invent their civilization, shape their culture and traditions, and inform their socioeconomic relations with their neighbors. These interactions have guided the Yorùbá philosophy that developed over time, expressing their conviction regarding society's evolution and the place that humans occupy within it. This web of knowledge can present a more coherent account than any other text yet produced regarding Yorùbá civilization. This volume demonstrates how global dynamics have been adopted in the creation of a Yorùbá community across different times and spaces.

Midwifery and the Medicalization of Childbirth Edwin Van Teijlingen 2000 This book provides an introduction to the sociological study of midwifery. The readings have been selected to highlight the interplay between midwifery and medicine, reflecting the medicalisation of childbirth. It highlights the major themes in both a historical and a current context, as well as western and non-western societies. Two major themes underlie the organisation of this book: that the conception of midwifery must be broadened to encompass a sociological perspective; and that the ongoing trend toward the medicalisation of midwifery is crucial to an understanding of the historical, current, and future status of midwifery. By medicalisation of childbirth and midwifery is meant the increasing tendency for women to prefer a hospital delivery to a home delivery, the increasing trend toward the use of technology and clinical intervention in childbirth, and the determination of medical practitioners to confine the role played by midwives in pregnancy and childbirth, if any, to a purely subordinate one.

Ifá Divination, Knowledge, Power, and Performance Jacob K. Olupona 2016-02-29 This landmark volume compiled by Jacob K. Olupona and Rowland O. Abiodun brings readers into the diverse world of Ifá—its discourse, ways of thinking, and artistic expression as manifested throughout the Afro-Atlantic. Firmly rooting Ifá within African religious traditions, the essays consider Ifá and Ifá divination from the perspectives of philosophy, performance studies, and cultural studies. They also examine the sacred context, verbal art, and the interpretation of Ifá texts and philosophy. With essays from the most respected scholars in the field, the book makes a substantial contribution toward understanding Ifá and its role in contemporary Yoruba and diaspora cultures.
