Employment Creation Through Community Economic Development 1983

Organizing for Neighbourhood Development Alan C. Twelvetrees 1996 Using case studies of community development corporations in the USA from the 1960s on, the analysis in this book shows the hopes, dilemmas, successes and failures of these CDCs. It offers lessons to those setting up or running community based economic development schemes or trusts.

On the Limits of Community Development Matthew F. Filner 2001 Community development is a complex approach to reducing poverty and empowering citizens. It involves thousands of Americans whose intentions are noble and often successful. Community developers have built affordable housing, created jobs, and attracted businesses.
Importantly, community developers have enacted these changes with a strong commitment to citizen participation developed in the mid-sixties. Since its creation, community development has evolved from a few participatory and civil rights-orientated organizations to a growth-oriented incorporated set of institutions. In the process, community development has become a central feature of urban public policy, and receives widespread support. Despite the strengths of community development and its participatory character, a deeper examination of citizen-based empowerment and economic development programs suggests that there are limits to community development. While poor citizens are involved in community organizations, property owners and others consistently overpower them due to wealth and access disparities.
Participation without the benefits of wealth does not necessarily translate into more political power. In addition, economic growth does not necessarily lead to greater economic equality.
Growth often undermines equality by forcing poor citizens to support projects with only limited benefits. Large downtown projects, for example, primarily benefit wealth developers and those who work downtown. Community developers must support these projects because their main sources of funding—the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit program (LIHTC) and Tax Increment Financing schemes (TIF)—depend on large development projects. Community developers are therefore structurally forced to support the very kinds of growth that create economic and political inequalities. Community development has therefore become incorporated in the growth regime through which power structurally limits the freedom of low-wealth citizens. The component chapters explore how community development evolved from a participatory effort to mitigate poverty, inspired by civil rights activists and the New Left, into an incorporated set of institutions committed to growth: (1) Community Development, American Democracy, and Urban Poverty; (2) The Foundations of Community Development; (3) Neoconservatism and Community Development; (4) Participation, Power and Growth in Community Development; (5) CDCs as Advocates: Affordable Housing in Minneapolis; (6) Comprehensive Community Development and Citizen Participation: Economic Growth and Minneapolis' NRP; (7) Community Development at the Millennium.

The Relevance of Training for the Maintenance of Advanced Avionics P. Carpenter-Huffman

1976 This report is an examination of formal training of airmen in the career fields responsible for flight-line maintenance of advanced avionics equipment. Initial training for flight-line maintenance, training at Field Training Detachments, TAC's Task Oriented Training program, and the management of training are investigated. The study shows that in initial training there was too much emphasis on theory and not enough on the practical knowledge and skills needed on the job. There was too little training on systems integration and troubleshooting integrated systems. To better prepare technicians for advanced avionics maintenance, formal training should teach job performance (rather than theory), should take place at the base and on the equipment the airman will be associated with, and should be interspersed with actual job experience. Training should be tailored to the needs of school personnel on training development and field evaluation of training should be lessened by having the users of trained personnel become active partners in the management of training.
