Building Confidence in Education Lew Armistead 1982 With a little planning and some occasional help, educators can develop a public relations program that will build a positive image for their schools and education in general. This monograph provides some public relations ideas and discusses theories about communication. Surveys indicate that students, newspapers, school staff members, and parents of students are major sources of school news. Ways of recruiting positive comments from these sources are provided. Some practical, low-cost ideas are presented for building a positive image by using both mass and interpersonal communication techniques. Guidelines are offered for working with newspaper and television reporters. Three short articles deal, first, with writing a news release; second, with responding to negative letters; and third, with letters to the editor that communicate the positive news of education. The monograph concludes by advising that school public relations is a long-term proposition and provides a checklist to note progress. Available school public relations materials are listed.

Public Speaking Deanna D. Sellnow 2003 Class-tested by over forty instructors for the past three years, Deanna Sellnow's exciting new textbook provides a contemporary and comprehensive alternative approach to the public speaking process. Reflecting the latest in communication research yet fully focused on the needs of today's students, 'Public Speaking' showcases both innovative and time-tested strategies to help readers learn and apply the skills necessary to become effective public speakers. Unique coverage of "learning styles" as they apply both to the speaker and audience is highlighted and integrated throughout the text. Students are taught how to assess their own learning styles and how to apply their knowledge of different learning styles both to their analysis of audiences and in the presentation of their speeches.
