The COVID-19 Pandemic and Risks in East Asia Nobuto Yamamoto 2022-11-29 Using "risk" as a conceptual lens, this book analyzes how communities across East Asia responded to the disruption unleashed by the COVID-19 pandemic. The contributors to this book look at how governments, societies, and individuals have perceived, experienced, dealt with and interpreted the pandemic and the transformations it has brought across countries like Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Vietnam, and the Philippines. They examine pressing concerns such as infodemic, digital health literacy, media cynicism, telework, and digital inequalities in conjunction with issues such as public trust, identity formation, nationalism, and social fragmentation. They look at a wide range of questions relating to communication, mediation, and reactions to the challenges of the pandemic. An insightful resource for scholars of risk studies and of East Asian societies, the book is also a valuable reference for students and researchers of media and communication studies and sociology.

PANTAWID PAMILYA PILIPINO PROGRAM (4Ps)

Mariadedinda Saliling Sicam Pobre 2025-02-21 The book was written to investigate the well-being of the Pantawid Pamilya Pilipino Program beneficiaries in North Cotabato in terms of health and education. It determined the socio-demographic profile, economic condition, cultural factors, economic sufficiency, and social adequacy. It also determined the relationship between the socio-demographic characteristics and their well-being, the economic condition and their well-being, and the cultural factors and their well-being. Extension campaign materials are the output of the study. The socio-demographic characteristics of the Pantawid Pamilya Pilipino Program (4Ps) beneficiaries significantly influenced their total well-being. In the independent factors, the average annual expenditure of the beneficiaries was found to be the most significant predictor of their total well-being. The economic conditions of the Pantawid Pamilya Pilipino Program (4Ps) beneficiaries significantly influenced their total well-being. In the independent factors, the beneficiaries' work was found to be the most significant predictor of their total well-being. Among the independent factors, the beneficiaries' traditions and vices were found to be the most significant in their total well-being.

Conditional Cash Transfers

Ariel Fiszbein 2009-02-09

Conditional cash transfers (CCTs) are programs that transfer cash, generally to poor households, on the condition that those households make pre specified investments in the human capital of their children. This overview of the main report summarizes that there is good evidence that CCTs have improved the lives of poor people. Transfers generally have been well targeted to poor households, have raised consumption levels, and have reduced poverty, by a substantial amount in some countries. Offsetting adjustments that could have blunted the impact of transfers, such as reductions in the labor market participation of beneficiaries, have been relatively modest. The report also considers the rationale for conditioning the transfers on the use of specific health and education services by program beneficiaries. Thus CCTs have increased the likelihood that households will take their children for preventive health checkups, but that has not always led to better child nutritional status, school enrollment rates have increased substantially among program beneficiaries, but there is little evidence of improvements in learning outcomes. These findings suggest that to maximize their potential effects on the accumulation of human capital, CCTs should be combined with other programs to improve the quality of the supply of health and education services, and should provide other supporting services.
