Computer Integrated Quality System in CIM Systems

V. R. Milačić 1990

Computer Integrated Manufacturing (CIM)

represents the new strategy of manufacturing systems based on flexible automation and integration of vital functions. In the domain of quality, this concerns computer aided metrological processes and systems, and computer aided product quality control integrated into CIM systems. Metrological processes in CIM systems are applied to (i) workpieces prior to the cutting process, during the machining process and at the final checkout of parts, (ii) tools during or at the end of the machining process, and (iii) mobile elements and other workstation components. With this approach it is possible to define three domains relating to quality: flexible metrological systems, computer aided metrological functions at FMS workstations, and product quality control (CAI and CIQ systems).

Manufacturing Execution System - MES

Jürgen Kletti 2007-05-01

The transformation of the classic factory from a production facility into a modern service center has resulted in management problems for which many companies are not yet prepared. The economic efficiency of modern value creation is not a property of the products but rather of the process. What this means is that the decisive potentials of companies are to be found not so much in their production capability but in their process capability. For manufacturers the requirement for process capability, which has in the meantime become the basis of the certification codes, gives rise in turn to the requirement that all value-adding processes be geared to the process result and thus to the customer. A necessary condition of process transparency is the ability to map the company's value stream in real time, without the acquisition process involving major outlay - a capability which is - yond the dominant ERP systems. Today modern manufacturing execution systems (MES) can offer real-time applications. They generate current and even historical maps for production equipment and can thus be used as a basis for optimization processes. As early as the beginning of the 1980s work started on methods of this kind which were then known as production data acquisition or machine data collection. But while the main emphasis in the past was on achieving improvements in machine utilization, today the concern is predominantly to obtain real-time mapping of the value stream (supply chain).

Basic Integrated Quality Inspection Process Using Sap

Information Control Problems in Manufacturing Technology 1989

E.A. Puente
1990-09-14 The Symposium presented and discussed the latest research on new theories and advanced applications of automatic systems, which are developed for manufacturing technology or are applicable to advanced manufacturing systems. The topics included computer integrated manufacturing, simulation and the increasingly important areas of artificial intelligence and expert systems, and applied them to the broad spectrum of problems that the modern manufacturing engineer is likely to encounter in the design and application of increasingly complex automatic systems.

SAP R/3 Plant Maintenance

Britta Stengl 2001 SAP R/3 Plant Maintenance offers a clear introduction to this small but sophisticated component and provides a highly practical guide to implementing PM. Beginning with a examination of the key business processes underlying PM functionality, the book goes on to cover all the crucial aspects of maintenance planning and execution in R/3. Particular attention is given to integrating plant maintenance with a company's natural process flow.
