Building Trust in Startup Communication Marius Born 2024-10-26 This open access book explores the intriguing narrative of Nikola Corporation's startup journey in this insightful case study, examining its rapid ascent and subsequent decline from both a narrative and argumentative perspective. Founded by Trevor Milton, Nikola initially garnered investor interest with promises of a cleaner, sustainable alternative to diesel trucks. However, the company's surge in valuation was short-lived, as accusations from a short seller triggered a trust crisis, exposing alleged deception and raising doubts about the company's technology claims. This case study particularly focuses on the nuances of startup communication, emphasizing the critical importance of effective and trustworthy strategic communication for emerging tech ventures. It provides an in-depth look at the methods and tools necessary for startups to navigate initial skepticism and data limitations without exposing themselves to potential crises. Key insights include crafting compelling startup stories while maintaining trustworthiness, meeting investor information needs in an argumentatively convincing structure, recognizing the risks of blind faith in charismatic founders, and implementing internal checks and balances to safeguard against deception. Nikola's story serves as a cautionary tale, offering valuable lessons for entrepreneurs, investors, and scholars alike. This comprehensive examination sheds light on the challenges faced by startups dependent on emerging technologies and ambitious promises, making it an indispensable addition to the reading list of entrepreneurs.

30 Essential Skills for the Qualitative Researcher John W. Creswell 2020-08-06 The Second Edition of 30 Essential Skills for the Qualitative Researcher provides practical, applied information for the novice qualitative researcher, addressing the "how" of conducting qualitative research in one brief guide. Author John W. Creswell and new co-author Johanna Creswell Báez draw on many examples from their own research experiences, sharing them throughout the book. The 30 listed skills are competencies that can help qualitative researchers conduct more thorough, more rigorous, and more efficient qualitative studies. Innovative chapters on thinking like a qualitative research and engaging with the emotional side of doing qualitative research go beyond the topics of a traditional research methods text and offer crucial support for qualitative practitioners. By starting with a strong foundation of a skills-based approach to qualitative research, readers can continue to develop their skills over the course of a career in research. This revised edition updates skills to follow the research process, using new research from a wide variety of disciplines like social work and sociology as examples. Chapters on research designs now tie back explicitly to the five approaches to qualitative research so readers can better integrate their new skills into these designs. Additional figures and tables help readers better visualize data collection through focus groups and interviews and better organize and implement validity checks. The new edition provides further examples on how to incorporate reflexivity into a study, illuminating a challenging aspect of qualitative research. Information on writing habits now addresses co-authorship and provides more context and variation from the two authors.

Dealing with Real-World Complexity Mark Hürlimann 2009-04-09 Based on policy makers' limitations in solving real-life problems and the fact that information is rarely available in a pure quantitative form, enhancements and new approaches to remedy this are proposed by Mark Hürlimann. He introduces simple and more sophisticated static and dynamic methods to analyze complex topics. In addition a semi-quantitative approach is presented that integrates quantitative and qualitative variables in a feedback system. The author, finally, illustrates on the basis of a case study the advantages and limitations of the various approaches in a didactically sound and easily understandable way.

Aerodynamic Optimisation of Turbocharger Compressor Diffuser Geometry for Real-World Drive Cycles Kristaq Hazizi 2022-11-02 Doctoral Thesis / Dissertation from the year 2022 in the subject Engineering - Automotive Engineering, grade: 8.0, Anglia Ruskin University (FACULTY OF SCIENCE & ENGINEERING), course: Mechanical Engineering, language: English, abstract: The aim of the dissertation is to develop a new numerical optimisation technique for the diffuser geometry of a typical turbocharger compressor, using a non-parametric optimisation method (adjoint). This leads to an increase in power and thermal efficiency in real-world drive cycles for passenger car engines. The geometry and experimental data correspond to the TD025-05T4 compressor from the 1.2-liter Renault Megane passenger car supplied by MTEE. In this study, a set of numerical simulations were conducted along two turbocharger compressor speed lines at 150,000 rpm and 80,000 rpm to analyse and validate the results against experimental data. Three points on each speed line are selected: one point each in regions close to surge and choke and a point in the stable zone of the compressor map. In addition, this study optimises the diffuser geometry in a passenger vehicle turbocharger compressor using a gradient-based solution approach employing a non-parametrical adjoint shaping optimisation for ideal gas turbulent compressible flow applications. The adjoint solver is a gradient-based optimisation that can automatically generate a series of iterations of a design so that the mesh gradually changes shape to meet a single goal, like the efficiency of the compressor in this case. The study considers a total of six operating cases on the compressor map to optimise the full and partial load compressor operations, leading to a real-world drive cycle. These cases are the three cases (closer to surge, stable midpoint, and closer to the choke point) on each of the speed lines. A typical result for mid-stable operation on a 150,000 (rpm) speed line shows a gradual increase in efficiency up to a maximum of 2.6% improvement. While, for choke and surge optimisation, the geometry variation of the optimised diffuser is different, in the stable central area for both speed lines, the geometry change is consistent. Therefore, the diffuser can be made to work best for both half and full load engine operation. As a result, the optimum diffuser geometry impacts engine efficiency and the overall performance of a typical passenger car for real drive cycles, increasing power and slightly improving thermal efficiency. When a typical car engine is running at full and half-load in real-world operation, the improved compressor efficiency is expected to make a small difference. This will make the engine more powerful and more efficient by about 0.1%.
