Binomial distribution is a special case of the Poisson binomial distribution, which is the distribution of a sum of  $n$  independent non-identical Bernoulli trials  $B_i$  (with probabilities  $p_i$ ). The binomial distribution is a key concept in probability that models situations where you repeat the same experiment several times, and each time there are only two possible outcomes—success or failure. The binomial distribution evaluates the probability for an outcome to either succeed or fail. These are called mutually exclusive outcomes, which means you either have one or the other — but not both at the same time. A binomial is a polynomial with two terms. What happens when we multiply a binomial by itself many times?  $(a+b)^n$  is a binomial (the two terms...  $a$  and  $b$ ). The binomial distribution is a probability distribution used to model the number of successes in a fixed number of independent trials, where each trial has only two possible outcomes: success or failure.
