Joel is such a nice person. She's a person I have a lot of respect for. Persons (plural) is a very formal word. We only use it in rather legalistic contexts: [notice in a lift] Persons, people, or peoples? The plural of person should be people in the vast majority of contexts, although legalese uses the plural persons. Peoples should be reserved for instances where you are ... Oct 11, 2021 · Both persons and people can be used as plural forms of person. Persons is often used in formal, legal contexts to emphasize individuals as opposed to a group. People is the plural of person ... Many usage guides over the years have suggested that there is a clear distinction between these two words; people is used when referring to a collective group or indeterminate number, and persons ... People and persons both refer to groups of two or more individuals. In the past, persons had referred to specific numbers, whereas people was used for general groups. The word people is the most common and de facto plural form, but persons is also grammatically correct, just used less frequently and in more specific contexts. Sep 27, 2024 · People is used to talk about multiple humans or to refer to a group, and persons is used to refer to various individuals with the focus on their individuality. People is the commonly-accepted ... The plural form "people" is often used to refer to an entire nation or ethnic group (as in "a people"), and this was the original meaning of the word; it subsequently acquired its use as a plural form of person. ... Jun 17, 2025 · In short, persons is typically only found in legal or technical writing. But if you're referring to the plural of person as a collective noun, then the word you should use is people. Welcome to Person Centered Services, where our mission is to connect people to the care, support and opportunities that maximize their quality of life.
