A linear equation is an equation for a straight line. Let us look more closely at one example: The graph of $y = 2x + 1$ is a straight line. A graph is linear if all its points lie on a single straight line. You can verify this by checking that the slope (rise over run) between any two points on the graph is the same. There are a number of ways to identify a linear equation. Generally, a linear equation contains constants and variables and can be written in the form $y = mx + b$. Something linear is like a line. The adjective usually refers to something that follows an expected order or sequence — like railroad tracks or even the progression of a disease.
